Leading advocacy, advice and support for our sector

The Chemical Industries Association (CIA) is the leading trade association dedicated to representing and advising chemical and pharmaceutical companies across the United Kingdom.

The CIA represents over 200 companies with our core membership including a number of major multinationals, a growing number of SMEs, and associate members. From providing expert advice to facilitating networking between members, sharing good practice and reporting on policy developments, the CIA stands ready to support our members to ensure the chemical industry continues to drive growth and innovation in the UK.

Our representation includes lobbying legislators, policymakers and stakeholders on the issues that affect our member companies the most. We do this at the UK, European and international levels.

Mission

To make the UK the location of choice for chemical and pharmaceutical business growth

Purpose

To be the voice of chemical and pharmaceutical businesses located in the UK

To be the leading source of advice and support to our member companies

How we work

At the Chemical Industries Association, ensuring that member companies are represented at the highest level in Government is not just a goal, but a fundamental priority. To do this, we work across a large number of organisations and supporting bodies, engaging with and opposing government on political, economic and legislative issues affecting the industry's license to operate and compete in the UK, EU and the rest of the world. All aimed at making the UK as competitive a place as possible for members to trade and invest in.

All work undertaken by the Association is focused on meeting our members' needs. Our objectives are to:

Secure a policy and regulatory environment that supports competitiveness, innovation and growth.

Maximise global trade opportunities.

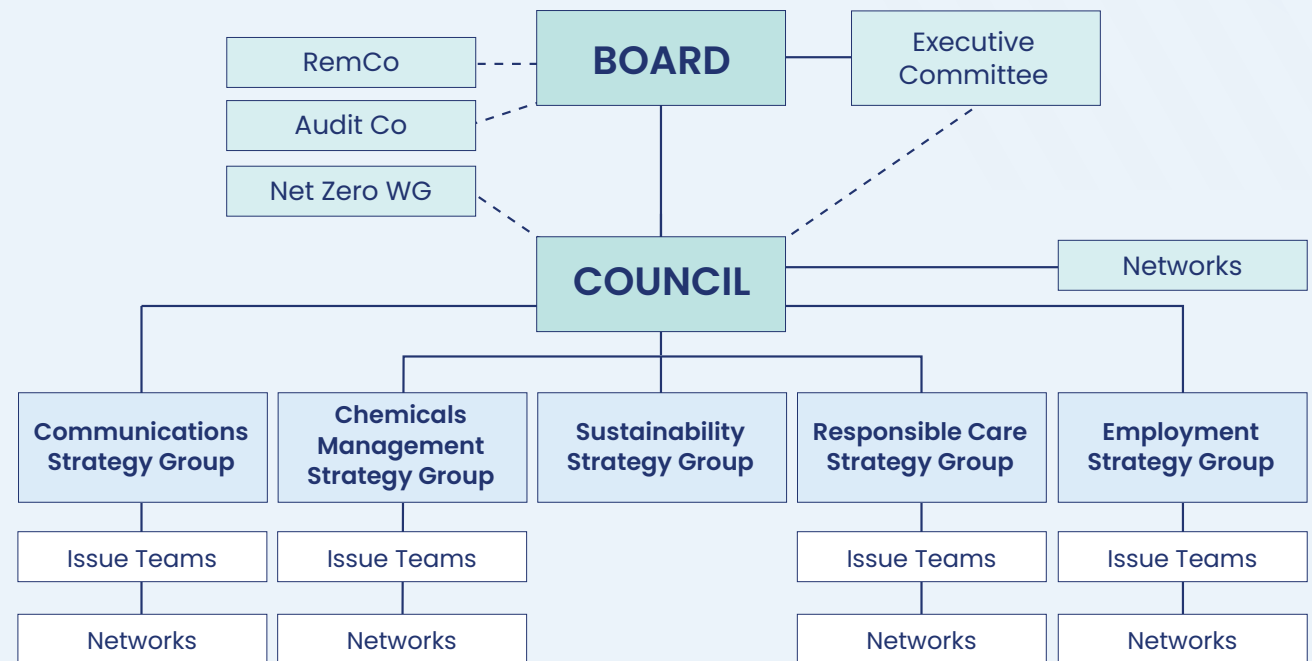

Secure a competitive net zero transition.

Secure the industry's current and future workforce.

The governance and policy of the Association are set by our Board and Council, elected from our member companies. Our operational priorities are agreed upon and worked by members through strategy groups, issue teams and networks of expertise. All the work undertaken by Association staff is totally focused on meeting the needs of our member companies.

Member benefits

Representation and advocacy: We serve as the primary voice for the chemical and pharmaceutical sectors, advocating for policies that promote innovation, sustainability and competitiveness on both national and international platforms.

Expert advice: Our team of industry experts provides tailored guidance and support to our members on a wide range of issues, from regulatory compliance to market intelligence and strategic planning.

Responsible Care: To join, all members must commit to the principles of Responsible Care. Members will have the opportunity to display the Responsible Care logo on their website and other material.

Networking and collaboration: Through our events, forums and collaborative initiatives, we facilitate meaningful connections and foster collaboration among our members, enabling them to share insights, exchange ideas and explore opportunities for partnership and growth.

Knowledge sharing: We keep our members informed and empowered through timely updates, reports and resources, covering industry trends, best practices and policy developments that impact their operations.

Exposure: Extend your reach through our exclusive networking events, sponsorship and content opportunities and CIAMatters magazine.

We offer two categories of membership:

Full membership is open to all chemical businesses operating in the UK. If you're a manufacturer, processor, formulator, importer / exporter, distributor or developing new chemical technologies you can join and benefit your business.

Associate membership Anyone who provides a service to a chemical company can be an Associate Member. You'll have the opportunity to promote your business through our networks and demonstrate your expertise to our members. You'll get new leads, a greater understanding of what your customers want and create the opportunity to build your company's brand reputation with CIA members and beyond.
